Co-design and shared delivery: working with partner organisations to meet the training needs of the health library and knowledge workforce

Anthea Sutton, Helen Buckley Woods, Andrew Booth
University of Sheffield
June 2017

Introduction
- Ongoing training and development needs due to rapid evolution of information landscape in the health service and research setting.
- Barriers to professional development, particularly to attend face-to-face training.
- Developed online training courses (FOLIO), successfully delivered in UK and Australia.

Methods
- Initial framework of themes to consider when collaborating with partner organisations.
- Framework reviewed after "Rapidly Reviewing the Research Evidence (RaRE)" delivered twice; England and Australia.

Results
- Data relating to framework themes organised into practical checklist to inform liaison with partner organisations.

Themes
• Stakeholder Needs
• Reputational Management
• Securing Commitment and Ownership
• Content Design
• Marketing Strategy

Conclusions
- Developed checklist as a decision tool in future planning to meet training needs.